Join the Study that Could Change Everything

Over the last 10 years, volunteers in the Parkinson’s Progression Markers Initiative (PPMI) have helped expand our understanding of Parkinson’s disease (PD) for the collective benefit of the entire PD community.

Now we’re enrolling new study participants who can contribute to a more detailed look into the way the disease develops and changes over time.

These insights could help lead to critical advancements across the spectrum of care: from the earlier identification of people who may be at risk for developing PD to innovative new treatments that could improve quality of life and slow disease progression.

www.michaeljfox.org/PPMI
Who can join the study?

The online part of PPMI is open to anyone over age 18 — with or without Parkinson’s — living in the United States.

Some medical centers, in and outside the U.S., also are recruiting people with certain factors:

- People diagnosed with Parkinson’s in the past two years and not currently taking PD medication
- First-degree family members (parent, child, sibling) of a person with Parkinson’s
- People who act out their dreams while asleep or who have a genetic mutation linked to PD
- People without Parkinson’s and no known risk to act as a comparison group

PPMI covers the cost of travel to a site for potential participants and a loved one. The study will cover the cost of study-related travel, and you will be paid a set amount at each visit to compensate you for time and completion of study-related procedures.

Take a short survey to get started or view a site list at www.michaeljfox.org/PPMI.